))	The Board of Osteopathic Medicine and Surgery (Board) has the authority to approve schools for licensure requirements. Currently there are no enforceable standards that identify criteria for approving these schools. However, the Board does have a list of schools accredited by the American Osteopathic Association Commission on Osteopathic College Accreditation that was approved by the Board in April 1978. The proposed rule will establish enforceable standards and identify schools considered approved by the Board.
	Reasons supporting proposal: Currently there are no enforceable standards for approving schools of osteopathic medicine. The proposed rule will clearly define that all schools accredited by the American Osteopathic Association Commission on Osteopathic College Accreditation are approved by the Board. The American Osteopathic Association Commission on Osteopathic College Accreditation is the only accrediting agency for schools of osteopathic medicine.
